

I heard over the news yesterday that Monday, Jan the 15th was the worst and most depressing day of the year. Several factors went into the making of that decision. I understand that they have a formula they use to determine this. One of the major contributing factors is the stress of the Christmas season just passed. Christ never intended for it to be that way. He meant for it to be what you helped make happen through TTWM during this season. Literally thousands of children provided for and blessed through your efforts and generosity. This was one of the best years yet for clothes and Christmas gift boxes for El Salvador. Bob's report was a great blessing to watch. Hopefully we can have it on TTWM web site soon. Added to that was the regular monthly support you precious folks faithfully send in to take care of the orphaned and underprivileged children.

Thanks also, for your continued prayers for our son in law, Thomas, as he battles ALS. Thanks to donations and help from so many of you, Thomas, Dee, and Abbie have moved into their new home. We could not have done it without your prayers and help.

We are so thankful to South Fork Baptist Church that had a heart to put a fresh water well in Damanapalli which is a tribal village in India. (pictured above) Over 1000 people will be blessed with clean drinking water in this village. Unclean drinking water is the leading cause for sickness and death in our world today.

Let's keep fighting the good fight until God calls us home.

Blessings,
Homer

Millicent is one of the many children that are a part of the Echoes of Mercy Program that reaches out to impoverished and orphaned children. Touch the World partners with Echoes of Mercy to help care for these children. Moses Omondi is the founder and director of Echoes of Mercy.

A second born in a family of four, Millicent would like to be a Lawyer when she grows up. Her parents are peasant farmers and they depend on their small garden just outside their house to take care of their family. The produce that they get from it does not bring in much, therefore, Millicent lacks the essential things she needs to grow up healthy like a balanced diet and proper clothing. She also goes without doing her homework as she has nothing to write on.

There are hundreds of children like Millicent that desperately need your sponsorship. For only $25 per month you can make a difference in the life of a precious child.
